Proceedings recorded by electronic sound recording, transcript produced by transcription service.

1                   And the defendants?

2                   MR. SIEGFRIED: Good morning, Your Honor. Jonathan
3 Siegfried for the defendant Arab Bank.

4                   MR. PECK: Andrew Peck, DLA Piper, for Arab Bank.

5                   MR. INGERMAN: Good morning, Your Honor. Brett
6 Ingerman for Arab Bank.

7                   THE COURT: And I had a couple of other names,
8 Jessica Masella and Lane McKee.

9                   MS. MASELLA: Good morning, Your Honor. Jessica 10 Masella for Arab Bank.

11                  THE COURT: Why are you not at counsel table?

12                  MR. MCKEE: Good morning, Your Honor. Lane McKee
13 for Arab Bank.

14                  THE COURT: Okay. Are you representing the 15 defendants? There is no reason for counsel not to be at 16 counsel table, right? What's the reason for that? Come join 17 the table.

18                  All right. So I have scheduled this at the request 19 of the parties. There was a document filed by the defendants 20 at document 53 with a response at 54. I'll just note at the 21 outset that there's some issue here as to whether there was 22 sufficient consultation between the parties before filing 23 this. I don't want to get into that, but I do want to remind 24 the parties that you should confer and be clear what you're 25 planning to request of the court before you file the papers.

1 If you're having trouble reaching each other, you should keep 2 trying until you do because it helps me if I know that the 3 parties have already ironed out their differences before they 4 come to me for any remaining differences.

5 All right. So is it -- Mr. Siegfried, I guess since 6 it's your motion, tell me what's going on here. I -- it's not 7 entirely clear to me, so you're going to have to explain what 8 exactly you're seeking.

9 MR. SIEGFRIED: So, Your Honor, the -- as we 10 explained in our letter, the document requests were served on 11 the defendant bank. The bank within the time frame of those 12 called for in the request did two things. It reduced all of 13 the documents that it had in its possession, most of which 14 were introduced in Linde. Certainly all of those relating to 15 the bank secrecy issue. And we produced those responsibly by 16 category and by actually the Bates numbers so there was no 17 confusion as to which documents responded to which requests.

18 We noted in our response that because of bank 19 secrecy issues and because this is not something that we get 20 to waive, obviously we need either consents of customers or we 21 need consents of foreign authorities that there were a number 22 of requests to seem to us to be both over broad and also not 23 descriptive enough to allow us to intelligently go and seek 24 these consents. We had a meet-and-confer with the plaintiffs 25 and asked them if they could either narrow their requests or

1 explain to us the basis of certain other requests so that we 2 could intelligently proceed and we were referred to the 3 responses -- the written response that all of the names that 4 were identified in the document request were Hamas leaders, 5 operatives or institutions.

6 Let me make clear that if we did not have to seek 7 foreign waivers or, in fact, seeking them, as far as the bank 8 is concerned, we would be happy to pursue literally 9 everything. We don't think those bank records are going to 10 show or advance their case at all, so this is -- we're 11 actually on the same side of the table in respect of wanting 12 to produce whatever it is that we can produce. But that's not 13 within our purview, so we need to be able to explain to a 14 foreign court, for example, why is it that we need something.

15 And it -- we were unable to move forward with the 16 plaintiffs on that front and we thought about this because 17 we're also very mindful not only of what happened to the bank
18 in the Linde case, but we're very mindful of the conversation 19 that we had with Your Honor the last time we were here. We 20 have no desire either to go through unnecessary motion 21 practice, delay anything for even a minute or frankly to be 22 sanctioned or to be accused of dilatory tactics.

23 So we actually went back into the record to take a 24 deeper -- dive back into the history of 2005 and '06. And one 25 of the things that we saw was that Magistrate Pohorelsky had

1 people who -- for whom there are no Bates numbers attached, so 2 that would be the remaining 25 people, it seems to me, are 3 they all referenced in the Linde trial record?

4 MR. OSEN: I believe they are, but I can certainly 5 represent that they were all identified as being related to 6 the attacks in the Linde trial. So --

7 THE COURT: Identified in what -- I'm trying to 8 provide someplace for defendant to look --

9 MR. OSEN: Sure.

10 THE COURT: -- so that they can get the information 11 as to who these people are.

12 MR. OSEN: I was going to come to that in a moment, 13 Your Honor. To be clear, again, because none of this takes 14 place in a vacuum, in preparation for the Linde trial there 15 was the submission of an expert report and ultimately trial 16 testimony by Arieh, A-R-I-E-H, Spitzen, S-P-I-T-Z-E-N. And, 17 Your Honor, if I may, because it will also I think assist 18 here, I'd like to just present a copy of the expert report and 19 I'll give a copy --

20 THE COURT: Again, I don't need to see it. I just 21 need to make sure the defendants know where to look.

22 MR. OSEN: I understand, Your Honor, but it would 23 actually be helpful without going through them line by line 24 just to demonstrate what are talking about because 25 Mr. Siegfried referred to the need to Google individuals. And

1 I think the context here is important. There is nothing here 2 that is a surprise or --

3 THE COURT: All right. And that's why I'm trying to 4 go through the 677 names. I don't need to go through them 5 individually. I just need for you to identify where the 6 defense team can look to get the answers that they're seeking.

7 MR. OSEN: Certainly, Your Honor. Amongst the 8 sources, although there are literally hundreds of them from 9 the trial record --

10 THE COURT: And that's part of the challenge is that 11 if you can be specific as to where to look, then defendant can 12 look and then we don't need to have this discussion on the 13 record.

14 MR. OSEN: Understood, Your Honor. There are a 15 number of appendices to the Spitzen report. They start with 16 Appendix 4 and they itemize contrary to Mr. Siegfried's 17 statement. You'll see that in requests going forward they're 18 not identified simply as martyrs or simply identified as Saudi 19 Committee beneficiaries. They've been specifically identified
20 because they were, for example, in request number 6, Hamas 21 suicide bombers.

22 THE COURT: So you're now looking at request number 23 6 in your first document demand?

24 MR. OSEN: Correct.

25 THE COURT: Okay. And actually, for request number

1 6 it looks like you have Bates numbers for all of those 2 people.

3 MR. OSEN: Correct.

4 THE COURT: All right.

5 MR. OSEN: And again, we're not picking names out of 6 a hat or listing the Palestinian phone book. This is a very 7 detailed and identified subsection. In fact, the irony of 8 this entire discussion is that we drastically narrowed the 9 production order that was approved in the Linde case in order 10 to make more specific and narrower than the requests that were 11 ultimately the subject of the production order there.

12 So we're, in effect, being penalized for being far 13 more granular and specific.

14 THE COURT: You're not being penalized. Nobody has 15 told you to do anything yet.

16 MR. OSEN: Not by the Court, Your Honor. Just by 17 counsel in their responses.

18 THE COURT: All right. So I'm just looking now
19 through all your requests and I see that there are Bates 20 numbers for a very large number of the requested -- the 21 individuals identified other than in request number 3 for 22 which there are -- it looks like 23 people who don't have 23 Bates number and you're saying that those people were 24 referenced in the expert report, Appendix 4, is that right?

25 MR. OSEN: And all of the appendices --

1                   MR. SIEGFRIED: That's -- that was my point about 2 martyrs.

3                   THE COURT: Okay. That's fine. So let me find out 4 from the plaintiffs. The defendant is complaining that that's 5 sufficient information for that.

6                   MR. OSEN: So, Your Honor, the same -- although the 7 trial focused on Hamas, Appendices 4 through 7 cover not only 8 Hamas, but Islamic Jihad, al-Aqsa Martyrs' Brigade and the 9 popular front for the liberation -- oh, I'm sorry, Your Honor.
10 My colleagues has corrected me; 4 through 7 is just Hamas-11 related. The subsequent appendices cover the additional 12 terrorist organizations.

13                  THE COURT: Okay.

14                  MR. OSEN: And again, Your Honor, it's not simply 15 that they list out the individuals. They provide narratives 16 in terms of source material, what terrorist attacks they were 17 involved in, et cetera, so it's quite detailed.

18                  THE COURT: So the -- what I heard from 19 Mr. Siegfried is that he's concerned that if these requests 20 were sent to the foreign governments, the foreign governments 21 might say we're not inclined to waive the bank secrecy as to 22 people who are just getting humanitarian aid because their 23 baby died in a bomb attack. So what can you say to that?

24                  MR. OSEN: Yes. There are no individuals on any of 25 these requests who fall into anything remotely like this

1 category. We are talking about senior leaders and operatives 2 of the terrorist organizations.

3 THE COURT: How do you know that? Maybe that's the 4 basis.

5 MR. OSEN: Your Honor, again if I may ask if I can 6 show you the appendix we have a copy for counsel.

7 THE COURT: All right. So I'm looking at a document 8 that is just identified by a title that says Appendix 4 and 9 then it's several pages long and it ends at Appendix 24. And 10 it looks like it's, as you mentioned before, expert report of 11 an expert Spitzen in Linde.

12 So are these the names -- when you have name of 13 operatives are these the names of the individuals that you're 14 seeking records for?

15 MR. OSEN: Yes. For the most part where we can 16 identify the operative we do so. Obviously because in the 17 case of deceased terrorists who received payments, martyr 18 payments or otherwise, the payments themselves are sometimes 19 to the family member. So I won't say it's universally true.
20 So, for example, in request number 4 for Islamic Jihad, 21 suicide bombers number 2, the name of family of Mustafa, 22 Faisal Mustafa, Abu Saria [ph.] is there instead of the actual 23 perpetrator. And I can spell that for the Court if that's --

24 THE COURT: That's fine. You're making reference to 25 the second request.

1                   MR. OSEN: Correct. It's the -- sorry. It's the 2 fourth request but the number 2 under 4 as in --

3                   THE COURT: I'm sorry. You gave me two documents.

4                   MR. OSEN: Oh, yes.

5                   THE COURT: One references plaintiff's first
6 request.

7                   MR. OSEN: Yes. This is the plaintiff's second 8 request.

9                   THE COURT: Okay.

10                  MR. OSEN: Which is dealing with the non-Hamas --

11                  THE COURT: Yes. And then it says request number 4 12 under that.

13                  MR. OSEN: Right. And under number 4 if you get to 14 the second name and the fourth name, the refer to -- 15                  THE COURT: Family of.

16                  MR. OSEN: -- family of -- 17                  THE COURT: Yeah.

18                  MR. OSEN: -- because it's not the actual 19 perpetrator identified.

20                  THE COURT: Right. But if -- it's family of and 21 then the name that is -- that follows that --

22                  MR. OSEN: Is the perpetrator.

23                  THE COURT: -- is the person who would then be 24 identified on these appendices under a column that says "Name 25 of Operatives."

1 four or five-year period --

2 THE COURT: But they're --

3 MR. SIEGFRIED: -- who were arrested.

4 THE COURT: But they're -- records aren't being 5 asked for those people. So we're just focusing on the ones 6 here. Give me an example of a description that you think is 7 going to be inadequate for the bank secrecy request.

8 [Pause in the proceedings.]

9 MR. SIEGFRIED: Give me a moment, Your Honor, while 10 I go through some of these.

11 MR. OSEN: Your Honor, while Mr. Siegfried is 12 looking at this, can I just note one additional point from a 13 practical procedural standpoint --

14 MR. SIEGFRIED: I can --

15 MR. OSEN: Oh, if you're ready, I'll stop. We 16 informed Mr. Siegfried and his colleagues that we did consider 17 the question of what the scope of the production order is to 18 be different from what you might term prior -- prioritization 19 of letters of requests or letters of rogatory.

20 In other words, assuming the Court were to issue a 21 production order for every name we requested, we wouldn't 22 expect them and we would work with them to prioritize, let's 23 say, a top ten or a top five or a top twenty list of names 24 that are most important to us in each grouping so that they 25 would not have to prepare 600 requests off the bat. I'll stop

1 there. Mr. Siegfried wants to --

2 MR. SIEGFRIED: If I can respond to that, Your 3 Honor, that's the first we're hearing some limitation.
4 Obviously there are sort of two aspects of this. I'm just an 5 old Civil Procedures guy and proportionality is certainly part 6 of the December 2015 rules amendment; 677, regardless of 7 whether we know who they are or not, and we don't, is 8 disproportionate to their needs. If they are willing, as I 9 think I just heard Mr. Osen say, to cut that back in terms of 10 the letters of request we'd be happy to work with him on that.

11 The other factor that goes into that is -- you know,
12 in -- under Judge Pohorelsky's order we went to Lebanon. I 13 believe it was for one account and we got it. When you start 14 going for 677 accounts or whatever the lesser number is, it is 15 much harder politically for the bank regulators and the 16 foreign courts to approve that. So all we're trying to do is 17 cut the requests down. We're not saying, you know, never ever 18 again. If there's some particular reason, this is the first I 19 heard from Mr. Osen that they would be willing to cut that 20 down.

21 But, I mean, our approach to this is we are willing 22 as soon as the scope is determined, either by party agreement
23 or Your Honor, hopefully not 677. Whether it's the 122
24 mentioned in the complaint or however it's sliced and diced, 25 we are willing at this point without requiring Your Honor to

1 rule on bank secrecy to go and try to get this information and 2 do it faster than if there were the extensive motion practice
3 that might have originally been anticipated. You know, we're 4 not asking to be ordered. You know, we may need the order 5 because of the letters rogatory, but we're willing to start 6 right away in dealing with that. And that's our theme, so to 7 speak, for today.

8                   THE COURT: Okay. So my thing is that the parties 9 should be talking to each other a little bit better because 10 had the defendants offered, hey, 677 is an awful lot, can we 11 cut it down, maybe the plaintiffs would have said, "Sure, 12 let's try to work on that." In fact, I heard even better from 13 Mr. Osen a moment ago, which is a top ten. Right. And I'm 14 not saying that you're committed to ten, but by cutting it 15 down quite drastically --

16                   MR. OSEN: Well, Your Honor, I think we're 17 conflating two separate issues.

18                   THE COURT: Okay.

19                   MR. OSEN: One is the proper scope of discovery 20 under Rule 26 and the other is how the defendant deals with 21 foreign bank secrecy objections under restatement 442 and Rule 22 37 if it comes to that. They're two separate things.

23                   So one is a question of what you present to a 24 foreign regulator and the other is what's the proper scope of 25 discovery under Rule 26 in this case. We would submit, Your

1 Honor, that every single request is completely and entirely 2 appropriate as in the appropriate scope under Rule 26 and 3 should be so ordered. Once that is done, the question of 4 whether or what the prioritization of requests is, is 5 something that we said in our meet-and-confer explicitly. We 6 would be prepared to work with them on to prioritize so that,
7 for example --

8 THE COURT: So just it's a timing prioritization?

9 MR. OSEN: Yes, because if, for example, they do 10 five or ten and they are futile, then there's no point then in 11 doing the other 640 or whatever it might be. There's a 12 threshold question.

13 What they're trying to do, as I see it, is to 14 conflate something, which is not a Rule 26 issue, but to 15 basically put the burden on us for the fact that they'll be 16 non-compliant with the production order. And therefore, the 17 production order should be narrower because they plan to be 18 non-compliant.

19 And so following again there are many things I could 20 say about the past record. Your Honor, for example, they cite 21 to Lebanon as a sample of success. That was actually part of 22 the basis for the sanction in that case because the records 23 that they sought to produce through the letter of request had 24 already been produced without informing the court to the U.S.
25 regulators.

1                   So I don't want to go and rehash everything that has 2 occurred in this prior case to date. But suffice to say,
3 when, for example, Judge Pohorelsky issued his production
4 order it was not curbed by virtue of making it easier to file 5 letters of request. That's a separate question as to how to 6 do that in a more orderly fashion, whether it should be 7 staged, whether you need to do them all at one time to 8 demonstrate a good-faith effort or can do a few of them and 9 test the waters.

10                  They can come back on the remedy phase if they are 11 unsuccessful in producing and say, well, we tried ten or we 12 tried twenty and it wasn't reasonable to make us do 600 and I 13 think they'd have a good argument there. But that's not the 14 question of what should be in the production order, what's 15 appropriate in the scope of production. Every request here is 16 narrowly tailored.

17                  And if I may, just one other point because it goes 18 to the central problem of this kind of litigation, one of the 19 things we have to prove is that the defendant was generally 20 aware of its role in facilitating substantial assistance to 21 Hamas or other terrorist groups. And part of that -- and 22 important, maybe the most critical part of that is volume.
23 You know, once is an accident; twice is an oversight. Five 24 hundred times is intent.

25                  And so the idea that three Hamas leaders or two or

1 five suicide bombers, not ten is immaterial it's critical to 2 our case because the more they did it for the more operative, 3 the more suicide bombers, the more leaders, the easier it will 4 be for us to prove to a jury satisfaction that they knowingly 5 engaged in this conduct systematically.

6 THE COURT: Okay. So thank you for that 7 clarification. So I take the point that we're -- the 8 complaint here has been about bank secrecy and the issue is 9 really -- I don't think there's a request at the moment to 10 narrow the production because what I've heard you said 11 earlier -- say earlier, Mr. Siegfried, is if it was up to the 12 bank you'd be fine producing it. Okay. So it's not about 13 curbing or curtailing the scope of the production. It's just 14 that the bank has a limitation because of bank secrecy. And 15 so we're trying to figure out the best way to actually figure 16 out if the individual company -- individual countries are 17 going to be compliant or whether they're going to assert bank 18 secrecy.

19 So for that exercise it might make sense to send out 20 a few requests and see what the bank -- what the governments 21 say and if the governments say, great, okay, no problem, then 22 you might be in a better position to send out more requests to 23 those governments.

24 If the governments come back immediately and say no, 25 then maybe it's not worth trying. If the governments come

1 back and say -- and I don't know if they do; maybe they just 2 say no -- if they say, we don't have enough then we'll know 3 what to send forward.

4                   So for that exercise it might make sense for the 5 parties to sit down and figure out the top ten or however many 6 you need to get answers to how the government put the -- will 7 react to the requests.

8                   Does that make sense, Mr. Osen? Is that what you're 9 proposing?

10                  MR. OSEN: We have no objection to that, Your Honor.

11                  THE COURT: All right. So why don't you do that 12 because then we'll have a better idea as to what the 13 governments need so that the parties can exchange information 14 to clarify that. So number one, please do that.

15                  Number two, ask to the requests, Mr. Siegfried, that 16 you've been -- that you brought up at the beginning, which is, 17 to paraphrase, we have no idea what you're talking about, it 18 seems that there is information, and it may not be perfect 19 information, but if you put together the combination of the 20 expert report appendices, the complaint which you've already 21 referenced, the Bates numbers that have been referenced that 22 you would get a pretty good picture of what you need. And to 23 the extent that there are things where you have no information 24 or you need more information then for that limit set of 25 circumstances you can go back to the plaintiff and say, hey,

1 can you give us more information on that; or if you've looked 2 at the Bates pages that have been referenced and say that 3 really doesn't give us enough, do you have more, then that 4 would be a good limited conversation that you can have. And I 5 think it's in plaintiffs' best interests to give us as much 6 information as you have and if you don't have it, then that's 7 all you got, right. So then if you're going to use that 8 information to go to the governments for bank secrecy purposes 9 then you're taking your chances as far as whether that 10 government is going to say not enough, too bad, or fine.

11 Right?

12 So I just think you need to talk more about what 13 you've got and what you're missing but certainly have all this 14 information is a pretty good start and there's no need to to 15 go Google. I mean, right? I mean, I know that you've used 16 that as an example, but it seem that documents that have 17 already been produced, as well as a conversation with 18 plaintiff's counsel will get you much farther.

19 MR. SIEGFRIED: Yeah, Your Honor, just to be clear, 20 again, we did because that's one of the reasons I was able to 21 tell you how many of those names were in the Spitzen report 22 that that is the dia -- I'm very happy with this process.
23 This is the dialogue that we're going to have in our meet-and-24 confer. I'm not going to go back over that history, but we 25 know that there were 120 names from Spitzen. Many of them

1 match up with the allegations of the complaint.

2           But the process to us that you just suggested I
3 think makes a great deal of sense because what we want to do, 4 as I said from the start, is we do want to go out there. We 5 do want to go out there with hopefully requests that will be 6 successful or reasonable and just won't be simply brushed off 7 by authorities. And I think in that regard we would certainly 8 welcome the opportunity to sit with plaintiffs and identify 9 those.

10           We would welcome the opportunity as well perhaps 11 at -- I'm saying this off the top of my head, so please 12 understand that -- I think we'd welcome probably the 13 opportunity to perhaps even phrase the letters rogatory a bit 14 more creatively than you normally do so that -- so that a 15 foreign authority when they get the document particularly in 16 that region understands what it's dealing with because I --

17           THE COURT: Well, and I --

18           MR. SIEGFRIED: -- don't think we necessarily get 19 the chance to stand up in a courtroom and --

20           THE COURT: Yes, but --

21           MR. SIEGFRIED: -- have that dialogue.

22           THE COURT: So I'm going to assume that you have 23 resources that will give you some information as to what is 24 likely to be a successful letter rogatory and you can ask 25 those people who have done this before what should go into it

1 and what is likely to make it successful.

2           They and therefore you will know more than me, so I 3 think that you should engage in that process and go ahead and 4 do that and have a discussion. I'm always a little bit 5 puzzled as to why people can't work these things out 6 themselves and you need the person who knows the list in the 7 room to sit here and talk to you but if --

8           MR. SIEGFRIED: That --

9           THE COURT: -- that's what you need, that's what I'm 10 getting paid for. So I'm happy to do it, but it just seems 11 like you should -- you should talk to each other and these 12 things could probably be worked out without me getting 13 involved. But be it as it may, please do go forward. Figure 14 out -- I think everybody wants to have the most successful 15 letter -- letter rogatory as possible because everybody wants 16 to get the information. And if there's a problem because it's 17 not enough for the foreign government, then we can come back.
18 You can figure out first what you think can be done. And if 19 the Court needs to get involved, then I'll get involved. And 20 if there's -- if that's the end of it, then I think people 21 need to figure out what the next step is. But getting to and 22 then past the foreign governments is the first step and so 23 just do the best you can.

24           MR. SIEGFRIED: Your Honor, just so you know, we 25 have begun that process.

1                   THE COURT: Okay.

2                   MR. SIEGFRIED: I was simply trying to -- since 3 there are some judges who say, what are these, I haven't seen
4 anything that looked like these before, and that's all that I 5 was trying to say, that they may not be just the traditional,
6 we need these documents, here's the attachment. That's all I 7 was trying to --

8                   THE COURT: I've never seen --

9                   MR. SIEGFRIED: -- say.

10                  THE COURT: -- one. It's all going to be new to me.
11 All right. So be as creative as necessary. But it's not 12 about creativity; it's effectiveness. So just be as effective 13 as you can with the best knowledge that you can and if you 14 don't know talk -- if you've never done it before, talk to 15 somebody who's done it. It seems very basic. So just do 16 that.

17                  Yes, Mr. Osen.

18                  MR. OSEN: Yes, Your Honor. At least in the four or 19 five instances where I've been involved in bank secrecy-
20 related activities of this kind, they are -- the letters
21 rogatory have been preceded by a production order by the Court 22 because that's the predicate. Otherwise, we just go back to 23 fighting over which of our requests were appropriate for the 24 letter.

25                  THE COURT: Okay. So is there -- so -- and that is

1 I certify that the foregoing is a court transcript 2 from an electronic sound recording of the proceedings in the 3 above-entitled matter.
